THE UNKNOWN CHEF

THE SYRIAN REFUGEE

I'm producing a show based on non-famous cooks from across the globe. It will be the story of their passion and what brought them into being a cook and develop their particular style and brand of cooking highlighting their favourite dishes.

It is a documentary drama to show their flair, cooking technique and unique story, not the traditional A to B cooking show.

Our focus is on the unknown cook. Who, why and how did they come to be who they are today.

With a wide variety of different cuisines, the show will cover it all.

From the deserts of the Northern Sahara to the Mountains of Patagonia.

Our show will explore the cooks' culinary journey and how and why they first fell in love with cooking. Perhaps it was their grandmother who taught them ancient family recipes? Or was it a way to become better integrated into their neighbourhood? We want to discover not just who they are as cooks but a fully-fledged idea of who they are as people!

Each episode of the drama-documentary series needs to be less than an hour long in and around the UK.

The show will conclude with our cooks preparing a meal for family and friends. This will be the message of our programme, eating as a communal activity. Everyone around a table sharing great food, we truly understand the importance of what we eat. Throughout we will also have conversations with an in-house nutritionist explaining the importance of each ingredient used and the effect it has on our gut and microbiome.

The adventures of all these inspired cooks are rooted in the desire to create a community.

Andrea Rasca, an intrepid food entrepreneur and sustainability advocate, is the 'protagonist' who brings all these stories together. His mission was to discover a group of like-minded people who understand the importance of accessible, nutritious and compatible with local cultures, food for everyone as well as the preservation of the environment.

and exciting cooks who - through shared values - have joined the movement. Only natural and traceable ingredients will be used to create delicious food whilst celebrating cultural diversity within a context of virtuous circular economy aligned to
